Unbalanced Mind:

The Unbalanced Mind Julian P. Leff, 2002 The revolution in molecular genetics has given rise to the heady optimism that biology will soon explain all disturbances of mind and behaviour In this important and necessary book Julian Leff a world leading psychiatrist counters this reductionist stance Instead he emphasises what is known about the psychological social and cultural factors underlying mental illness In doing so he addresses many serious and urgent questions What exactly is the difference between sadness and depression What are the difficulties in categorising psychiatric conditions How are psychiatric diagnoses made in the first place What is the influence of emotional relationships on psychiatric conditions Is there a link between schizophrenia and socio economic deprivation How do public attitudes to mental illness affect choice of treatment And finally what does this tell us about the cultural causes of mental illness Hearings United States.
