Visual Creativity Through the Prism of Psychological Type Elizabeth A. Hartzell, 1998 A phenomenological design with a heuristic attitude was utilized for this study of artists The assumed triangle of aesthetic relationship between the artists and their psychological type their creative process and the observable features of their artwork was investigated To clarify this complicated nexus eight mature professional artists were interviewed representing the types delineated by Carl Jung in his volume Psychological Types 1921 1971 The four women and four men exemplified the Sensing Intuitive Thinking and Feeling types in both the introverted and extraverted stances The issues and relationships that were illuminated include the following

- 1 There was support for the basic assumption of the validity of the triangular inter relatedness of type creative process and artwork
- 2 The majority of the artists scored either dominant Intuitive or auxiliary Intuitive on the Myers Briggs Type Indicator the instrument used for selection of subjects
- 3 The artists and types were congruent on the majority of areas discussed in the interviews
- 4 The creative process in these artists reflected the expected personality characteristics and behaviors of the particular types
- 5 The artwork varied by function and attitudinal stance to the world in a number of artistic areas
- 6 These artists subjects appeared to reflect the larger population by their representation of each of the psychological types

The Creativity Research Handbook Mark A. Runco,1997

For years the research on creativity has been divided into person process product and press environment foci However the field is now much more extensive and diverse than it was when this scheme was proposed and these four categories no longer capture its essence The Creativity Research Handbook shows how extensive and diverse the field has become The Handbook contains extensive reviews and is intended to provide a comprehensive review of creativity research first by the breadth of coverage of the chapters and second by the depth and coverage within each chapter The Handbook is divided into two parts the first disciplinary and the second topical The approach is a comprehensive one authors do not focus on their own models or theories but instead give complete overviews The disciplinary structure allows a more sensitive and accurate placement of research The disciplinary framework also facilitates exchanges with the wider scholarly community research on creative thinking for example shares assumptions with the cognitive sciences and the disciplinary assignment can help individuals studying creativity to benefit from those sciences Several of the contributions demonstrate how creativity research has benefited from such disciplinary connections Part 2 contains six topical chapters each of them focuses on one critical topic
