Writing and Learning in the Science Classroom Carolyn S. Wallace, Brian B. Hand, Vaughan Prain, 2004-05-19 This volume is of interest to science educators graduate students and classroom teachers The book will also be an important addition to any scholarly library focusing on science education science literacy and writing This book is unique in that it synthesizes the research of the three leading researchers in the field of writing to learn science Carolyn S Wallace Brian Hand and Vaughan Prain It includes a comprehensive review of salient literature in the field detailed reports of the authors own research studies and current and future issues on writing in science The book is the first to definitely answer the question Does writing improve science learning Further it provides evidence for some of the mechanisms through which learning occurs It combines both theory and practice in a unique way Although primarily a tool for research classroom teachers will also find many practical suggestions for using writing in the science classroom

Developing Writers Richard Andrews, Anna Smith, 2011 This book takes a fresh look at what it means to learn and develop as a writer in response to concerns on both sides of the Atlantic and elsewhere in the world about standards in writing In this book the authors seek answers to some perennial questions Why does performance in writing tend to lag behind that in reading Are the productive skills of speaking and writing more difficult because they require the learner to make something new What does it mean to develop as a writer This book provides the foundation for developing the teaching of writing It does so by Reviewing and comparing models of writing pedagogy from the last fifty years Discussing the notion of development in depth Developing a new theory and model for writing in the multimodal and digital age Its basic premise is that writing needs to be re conceived as one crucial component of communication among other modes Andrews and Smith argue that although existing theories have provided insights into the teaching and learning of writing we need to bring such theories up to date in the digital and multimodal age Developing Writers is designed for teachers academics researchers curriculum designers parents and others who are interested in writing development It will also be intended for anyone who is interested in developing their own writing and who wishes to understand the principles on which such development is based Continue the conversation at www.developingwriters.org

Effective Learning and Teaching of Writing Gert Rijlaarsdam, Huub Bergh, Michel Couzijn, 2007-11-23 Effective Learning and Teaching of Writing is a handbook on research on the effective teaching and learning of writing It is a reference for researchers and educators in the domain of written composition in education Effective Learning and Teaching of Writing covers all age ranges and school settings and it deals with various aspects of writing and text types Research methodology varies from experimental studies to reflective classroom practitioners research This new volume in the series Studies in Writing brings together researchers from all kinds of disciplines involved in writing research and countries in their endeavour to improve the teaching of written composition It is the result of co operation of researchers

all over the world and shows that in spite of the differences in educational regions over the world research in writing shares similar problems and tries to find answers and generate new questions The body of knowledge in this volume will inspire researchers and teachers to improve research and practice

Writing and Learning Anne Ruggles Gere,1985 From the preface There are two major sections in this book reflecting the difference between learning to write and writing to show learning The first part of the book concentrates on learning to write It begins with a discussion of what writing is suggests ways of starting to write considers the role of audience in writing and then examines strategies for drafting These strategies are arranged in order of difficulty and each builds on the previous one so that for example argument or writing to convince includes strategies of narration and explanation Exploratory writing comes last in this section because it is the most difficult and inclusive kind of writing The exercises throughout these chapters provide opportunities to use what has just been learned and suggestions for further writing invite more extensive prose Part two focuses on writing to show learning by discussing strategies for revising These strategies include reseeing entire pieces of writing in terms of organization cohesion and style reshaping paragraphs and sentences and polishing writing to conform with conventions of spelling punctuation capitalization usage and accepted formats such as documentation style The index provides easy reference for questions about writing page ix
