

Learning Intentions and Success Criteria

When children understand what they are learning and what is expected of them, they learn best.

The terms 'Learning Intentions' and 'Success Criteria' can be intimidating and confusing but understanding them is vitally important when working in an Early Learning and Childcare setting. Learning intentions and success criteria will help your children understand both what they are learning and how to succeed.

They need both learning intentions and success criteria to direct, consolidate and achieve new knowledge. This guide will help you understand how to create learning intentions and success criteria in order to support your children and maintain best practice.

Learning Intentions

Sometimes known as learning objectives, aims, learning outcomes, goals, 'we are learning to...' statements etc.

Learning intentions should describe what you would like children to learn, not what they should be able to do.

Learning intentions help children focus on the aim of the learning experience, keep the activities relevant to the theme and support their understanding. They are not about what they are doing but what they are learning.

When writing learning intentions, you should use a language that focuses on what you would like the children to know, understand or be able to do.

When writing your learning intentions, ensure that they are written in language that your child can understand.

Writing Process And Intentions:

Stimulus, Intention and Process in Creative Writing Graeme Harper, 2024-02-01 Stimulus Intention and Process in Creative Writing explores three exciting and key areas of creative writing practice and understanding What stimulates a writer to write or to write a particular piece What do they intend to achieve when they do it And is there a process we can study and perhaps even understand The authors in this book who are both practitioners and researchers explore these three areas in unique and thought provoking ways They bring to the discussion both expertise in relation to what we already know and a sense of forward thinking in discussing how we can find out more This is a book for creative writing researchers and students who are seeking new knowledge about how creative writing is done what informs and encourages those doing it and what results from that knowledge and encouragement It is also potentially a book for creative writing practitioners who wonder how the things that interest them have them writing certain things and the ways they go about approaching undertaking and completing these projects The chapters in this book were originally published in New Writing The International Journal for the Practice and Theory of Creative Writing

Probability Designs Karin Kukkonen, 2020 In Probability Designs Karin Kukkonen presents the predictive processing model of cognition as a means of exploring narrative structure and reader experience Utilizing the literary canon of various cultures Kukkonen combines theory and cognitive science to analyze how reader expectation and prediction shape literature and how literature accomplishes cognitive feats that determine the human capacity for free exploratory thought
