The Physical Basis of Mind ... George Henry Lewes,1877 This volume is restricted to the group of material conditions which constitute the organism in relation to the physical world a group which furnishes the data for one half of the psychologist's quest the other half being furnished by historical and social conditions The Human Mind so far as it is accessible to scientific inquiry has a twofold root man being not only an animal organism but an unit in the social organism and hence the complete theory of its functions and faculties must be sought in this twofold direction One leading object of the following pages has been everywhere to substitute the biological point of view for the metaphysical and mechanical points of view which too often obstruct research the one finding its expression in spiritualist theories the other in materialist theories both disregarding the plain principle that the first requisite in a theory of biological phenomena must be to view them in the light of biological conditions Another object has been to furnish the reader uninstructed in physiology with such a general outline of the structure and functions of the organism and such details respecting the sentient mechanism as may awaken an interest in the study and enable him to understand the application of Physiology to Psychology The volume contains four essays The first on the Nature of Life deals with the specialty of organic phenomena as distinguished from the inorganic The second essay is on the Nervous Mechanism setting forth what is known and what is inferred respecting the structure and properties of that all important system The third essay treats of Animal Automatism Here the constant insistence on the biological point of view while it causes a rejection of the mechanical theory admits the fullest recognition of all the mechanical relations involved in animal movements and thus endeavors to reconcile the contending schools In the final essay the Reflex Theory is discussed and here once more the biological point of view rectifies the error of an analysis which has led to the denial of Sensibility in reflex actions because that analysis has overlooked the necessary presence of the conditions which determine Sensibility

Matthew Liao,2020 As Artificial Intelligence AI technologies rapidly progress questions about the ethics of AI in both the near future and the long term become more pressing than ever This volume features seventeen original essays by prominent AI scientists and philosophers and represents the state of the art thinking in this fast growing field Organized into four sections this volume explores the issues surrounding how to build ethics into machines ethical issues in specific technologies including self driving cars autonomous weapon systems surveillance algorithms and sex robots the long term risks of superintelligence and whether AI systems can be conscious or have rights Though the use and practical applications of AI are growing exponentially discussion of its ethical implications is still in its infancy This volume provides an invaluable resource for thinking through the ethical issues surrounding AI today and for shaping the study and development of AI in the coming years The Body in Mind Mark Rowlands,1999-11-28 In this book Mark Rowlands challenges the Cartesian view of the mind as a self contained monadic entity and offers in its place a radical externalist or environmentalist model of cognitive processes Cognition is not something done exclusively in the head but fundamentally something done in the world Drawing on both evolutionary theory and a detailed examination of the processes involved in perception memory thought and language use Rowlands argues that cognition is in part a process whereby creatures manipulate and exploit relevant objects in their environment It is not simply an internal process of information processing equally significantly it is an external process of information processing This innovative book provides a foundation for an unorthodox but increasingly popular view of the nature of cognition Proceedings of the American Antiquarian Society American Antiquarian Society,1895

Subjects of Experience E. J. Lowe,1996-02-15 In this innovative study of the relationship between persons and their bodies E J Lowe demonstrates the inadequacy of physicalism even in its mildest non reductionist guises as a basis for a scientifically and philosophically acceptable account of human beings as subjects of experience thought and action He defends a substantival theory of the self as an enduring and irreducible entity a theory which is unashamably committed to a distinctly non Cartesian dualism of self and body Taking up the physicalist challenge to any robust form of psychophysical interactionism he shows how an attribution of independent causal powers to the mental states of human subjects is perfectly consistent with a thoroughly naturalistic world view He concludes his study by examining in detail the role which conscious mental states play in the human subject s exercise of its most central capacities for perception action thought and self knowledge International Journal of Ethics ,1907 Includes section Book reviews
