Life between Memory and Hope Zeev W. Mankowitz,2002-09-30 This is the remarkable story of the 250 000 Holocaust survivors who converged on the American Zone of Occupied Germany from 1945 to 1948 They envisaged themselves as the living bridge between destruction and rebirth the last remnants of a world destroyed and the active agents of its return to life Much of what has been written elsewhere looks at the Surviving Remnant through the eyes of others and thus has often failed to disclose the tragic complexity of their lives together with their remarkable political and social achievements Despite having lost everyone and everything they got on with their lives they married had children and worked for a better future They did not surrender to the deformities of suffering and managed to preserve their humanity intact Mankowitz uses largely inaccessible archival material to give a moving and sensitive account of this neglected area in the aftermath of the Holocaust

Virtuous Responses to Suffering, Tragedy, and Evil Eric J. Silverman,2026-01-29 Suffering and tragic situations have always been a part of human experience This book features essays from varying philosophical views on responses to tragedy suffering and evil Many conflicting strategies for addressing such situations have been proposed in response to such tragedies Both Stoic acceptance and cathartic lament have been advocated Embracing skepticism especially religious skepticism about the goodness of reality has been one response While some religious adherents have responded with theodicy others have claimed that theodicy trivializes the significance of tragedy Anger activism fatalism prayer hope mourning patience and simple silence have all been proposed as responses to the tragic The chapters in this volume explore the patterns habits and beliefs that constitute virtuous responses to tragedy Virtuous in this context refers to excellent character both moral and intellectual character in response to the tragic Virtuous Responses to Suffering Tragedy and Evil will appeal to researchers and graduate students working in virtue ethics philosophy of religion theology and ancient philosophy
