The End of Automobile Dependence Peter Newman, Jeffrey Kenworthy, 2015-08-11 Cities will continue to accommodate the automobile but when cities are built around them the quality of human and natural life declines Current trends show great promise for future urban mobility systems that enable freedom and connection but not dependence We are experiencing the phenomenon of peak car use in many global cities at the same time that urban rail is thriving central cities are revitalizing and suburban sprawl is reversing Walking and cycling are growing in many cities along with ubiquitous bike sharing schemes which have contributed to new investment and vitality in central cities including Melbourne Seattle Chicago and New York We are thus in a new era that has come much faster than global transportation experts Peter Newman and Jeffrey Kenworthy had predicted the end of automobile dependence In The End of Automobile Dependence Newman and Kenworthy look at how we can accelerate a planning approach to designing urban environments that can function reliably and conveniently on alternative modes with a refined and more civilized automobile playing a very much reduced and manageable role in urban transportation The authors examine the rise and fall of automobile dependence using updated data on 44 global cities to better understand how to facilitate and guide cities to the most productive and sustainable outcomes This is the final volume in a trilogy by Newman and Kenworthy on automobile dependence Cities and Automobile Dependence in 1989 and Sustainability and Cities Overcoming Automobile Dependence in 1999 Like all good trilogies this one shows the rise of an empire in this case that of the automobile the peak of its power and the decline of that empire

Pacific Automobility Gijs Mom, 2022-09-13 The beginning of the 21st century has seen important shifts in mobility cultures around the world as the West's media driven car culture has contrasted with existing local mobilities from rickshaws in India and minibuses in Africa to cycling in China In this expansive volume historian Gijs Mom explores how contemporary mobility has been impacted by social political and economic forces on a global scale as in light of local mobility cultures the car as an adventure machine seems to lose cultural influence in favor of the car's status character
