their diverse perspectives they ably translated their charge into a series of questions that became the framework for this volume. The questions illuminate many of the issues that have been most contested in past and current discourse about teacher education reform. Studying Teacher Education examines research about the current pool of prospective and entering teachers and about local institutional state and federal preservice teacher education policies and practices. The book includes three general chapters and nine research syntheses: The AERA Panel on Research and Teacher Education Context and Goals; Researching Teacher Education in Changing Times; Politics and Paradigms; Teacher Characteristics; Research on the Demographic Profile; Teacher Characteristics; Research on the Indicators of Quality; Research on the Effects of Coursework in the Arts and Sciences and in the Foundations of Education; Research on Methods, Courses and Field Experiences; Research on Pedagogical Approaches in Teacher Education; Research on Preparing Teachers for Diverse Populations; Research on Preparing Teachers to Work with Students with Disabilities; Research on Accountability Processes in Teacher Education; Research on Teacher Education Programs; A Research Agenda for Teacher Education. Each chapter reviews the empirical literature and proposes a research agenda that builds on and extends what is known about a topic. A chart at the end of each chapter provides summary information for each of the empirical studies synthesized and two reference lists: one for all of the studies reviewed in the chapter and one for additional references used. The volume includes an introductory chapter on the Panel's context and goals and an accessible Executive Summary of the book as a whole. Studying Teacher Education: The Report of the AERA Panel on Research and Teacher Education is a timely indispensable reference for all researchers and professionals in the field.

The Art and Science of Teaching Robert J. Marzano, 2007-07-15. Presents a model for ensuring quality teaching that balances the necessity of research based data with the equally vital need to understand the strengths and weaknesses of individual students. Research in Classrooms Lorin W. Anderson, Robert Bounds Burns, 1989. This book is the only one to date which takes up epistemological issues concerning classroom research and pursues them in relation to design and methodological matters with depth and balance. It deals with all of the perennial issues that have divided scholars in the field and contributes more to achieving points of reconciliation than has previously been available. This is not yet another substantive review of the findings of classroom research. It makes no attempt to portray the current state of knowledge of such topics as teacher praise, student initiations, teacher interactive decision making, student deviance, homework, student engagement and the like. This is more a book about classroom research for those who want to learn how to teach by digesting the products of research and it does not justify its existence in the deficiencies of the past. Indeed, it sees strengths and shortcomings in many different approaches. This book gives students tremendous potential to capitalise on the experience and accumulated wisdom of decades of scholars so as to emerge from it with high levels of understanding and knowledge of the field. It also contains historical material which provides an excellent record of developments over time and gives many fully descriptive examples of earlier achievements.
