The City Is Ours Muna Güvenç,2024-08-15 The City is Ours accounts how urban politics mediated the rise of Kurdish nationhood and mobilization in Diyarbakır Turkey Muna Güvenç elucidates how urban and architectural forms are not merely the backdrop of the cityscape where political struggles unfold they constitute the very essence of these conflicts Güvenç posits that urban spaces offer wiggle room turning oppression into chances for dissent and resilience and offering opportunities for vulnerable minority groups to create sociopolitical blocs and mobilizations Güvenç takes readers from municipal halls to the streets and illustrates how in the early 2000s pro Kurdish parties harnessed urban planning to resist coercion and foster Kurdish mobilization in Turkey Güvenç challenges readers to rethink urban neoliberalism new forms of nationalisms and mobilizations and the ways they shape cities and politics The City is Ours is a profound awakening an invitation to all architects and urban planners urging them to rise above the confines of their blueprints and embrace the vast tapestry of the politics of space

a necessary evil Covering the period between 1935 and 1941 she examines how these women functioned as political actors even though they were excluded from positions of power through activism in women s organizations informal women s networks and even male dominated lobbying groups In the Great Debate over whether America should enter the war some women favored aid to the Allies not because they hoped for war but because they hoped aid would forestall more direct U S involvement but also because they believed war was preferable to a Nazi victory Paton Walsh shows that this activism involved some of the most prominent women of their day Elizabeth Cutter Morrow whose son in law Charles Lindbergh was an isolationist spokesman supported the revision of the Neutrality Acts to allow the sale of arms to the Allies and expressed her support in a national radio broadcast Soon other women joined this debate Esther Brunauer of the AAUW journalist Dorothy Thompson and organizations like the League of Women Voters and National Women s Trade Union League broke from the pacifist tradition to advocate American aid for the Allied cause Focusing on the conflict in Europe Paton Walsh shows how these women grasped the implications of the Lend Lease program for America s entry into the war but supported it nevertheless By late 1941 the Women s Division of the Fight for Freedom Committee had been established no longer merely advocating aid to Britain to keep American boys out of battle this organization supported direct American involvement in the war as a means of stopping Nazi oppression While most historians have focused on women s pacifism Paton Walsh connects women more directly to world events and shows how those interventionists reformulated maternalist ideas to justify and explain their beliefs Our War Too is a story of American women trying to reconcile the irreconcilable to preserve both their principles and their peace It expands our understanding of women as political actors and thinkers about foreign policy as it sheds new light on American public opinion over the build up to the war
