The Spider's Web Theodore Horace Savory, 1952 A Spider's Web Erika de Nijs, 2016-12-15 Spiders are identified by the kinds of webs they build. Read about some of the different kinds of webs from tangled to funnel and the purposes they serve. Spiders and Their Webs Darlyne A. Murawski, 2007-08-01 Darlyne Murawski photographed spiders and their webs for National Geographic. Her dazzling pictures and lively narrative will show you spider webs as you've never seen them before. You'll meet spiders that trick bees by making flower-like patterns in their webs, others that toss their webs like nets, or use them like slingshots. There's a tiny Hawaiian spider that flings strands of silk with its hind legs to lasso a meal, a spider that uses its web to make an air bubble house underwater. But that's not all. You'll learn how to make invisible webs visible and about other ways spiders use their silk. What it takes to be a National Geographic photographer. Photos.

Spiderwebs Nancy Furstinger, 2019-08-01 A spider's web is made from silk. Spiders can spin different kinds of silk. Some strands are sticky. Other strands are dry. The Spider Web Julie Brinckloe, 1974 Pictures relate the building of a spider web and its destruction by man.

Spider Webs William Eberhard, 2020-12-01 In this lavishly illustrated first-ever book on how spider webs are built, function, and evolved, William Eberhard provides a comprehensive overview of spider functional morphology and behavior related to web building and of the surprising physical agility and mental abilities of orb weavers. For instance, one spider spins more than three precisely spaced morphologically complex spiral attachments per second for up to fifteen minutes at a time. Spiders even adjust the mechanical properties of their famously strong silken lines to different parts of their webs and different environments and make dramatic modifications in orb designs to adapt to available spaces. This extensive adaptive flexibility involving decisions influenced by up to sixteen different cues is unexpected in such small, supposedly simple animals. As Eberhard reveals, the extraordinary diversity of webs includes ingenious solutions to gain access to prey in esoteric habitats from blazing hot and shifting sand dunes to capture ants to the surfaces of tropical lakes to capture water striders Some webs are nets that are cast onto prey while others form baskets into which the spider flicks prey Some aerial webs are tramways used by spiders searching for chemical cues from their prey below while others feature landing sites for flying insects and spiders where the spider then stalks its prey In some webs long trip lines are delicately sustained just above the ground by tiny rigid silk poles Stemming from the author's more than five decades observing spider webs this book will be the definitive reference for years to come
