Zanardi Landi (contessa),1915      The secret of an empress [Elizabeth, empress of Austria]. Karoline Franziska M. Zanardi Landi (contessa),1914      The Secret of an Empress Countess Zanardi Landi,2003-12-01 The Countess Zanardi Landi 1882 1935 writes of her relations with her mother Empress Elizabeth of Austria and the Court of Vienna The Empress of Austria is constantly on a pedestal above the rest of the world and her children are drilled to look upon her in that way If she should wish to be present at their lessons there is no such thing for her as going straight to the schoolroom Her visit must be announced twenty four hours in advance teacher and pupils are dressed for the occasion questions and answers are prepared and at the end of the visit her Imperial Majesty graciously expresses her satisfaction to the teacher The Empress may not even select the persons who are to be about her children nor the subjects which they are taught She may never have a simple informal meal with them nor indulge in a ramble with them out of doors At all times they must remember that they are in the presence of the almost sacred person of the Empress The inevitable result is that they are really hardly her children at all neither has the natural affection of a child for its mother any opportunity for development

The Secret of an Empress (Classic Reprint) Zanardi Landi,2015-07-14 Excerpt from The Secret of an Empress Two questions have often been asked me by people who have known part only of my life story and it seems to me that before I begin to tell the whole of that story I should do well to answer them The first question is Why did the Empress Elisabeth wish to bring me up as she did away from the Court The second is Why does the Emperor Francis Joseph refuse me recognition Why then did the Empress bring me up as she did It is I suppose fairly well known that the Court of Vienna is still under the rule of a code of etiquette which dates from the sixteenth century But I doubt whether more than a very few outside the Court itself realise how crushing the code is I shall have occasion later to refer to it in some detail and shall here speaking only of that portion of it which concerns the Empress's position. In Austria the sovereign's wife is a person standing entirely by herself. The Emperor himself is above her and she is not permitted to go to see him as she wishes. There are always the ceremonies of asking permission before a meeting and of announcing the approach. All the rest of the Court is below the Empress and not one of her relatives even may see her without obtaining leave some time beforehand through the Grand Mistress or her deputy. This may not be considered a great hardship so far as ordinary relatives are concerned nor indeed anything out of the way in a high rank of society. But in so far as the rule applies to the intercourse of mother and child it becomes tragic in its cruelty. Mere archdukes and archduchesses may associate freely with their children who are of the same status as themselves. The Emperor and Empress on the other hand are hedged round with restrictions.
