CHAPTER VI The Wedding Gown THERE is but one day in a woman's life when she may wear the orange blossoms and one of the secrets of happiness is to take of it what the hour brings The memory of those fragrant blossoms filmy veil and lustrous satin as she stands a bride in all the paraphernalia of her wedding finery while her mirror makes pleasant and flattering reflections will be treasured by a woman as long as she lives If then circumstances do not forbid by all means a bride should have a real wedding gown a white frock of whatever material and a veil I heard of one backwoods bride whose veil was of mosquinetting but who wore it in serene and blissful unconsciousness that she was not in typical bridal array From time immemorial as all the world knows the traditional attire for a bride is a gown of soft rich cream white satin trimmed simply or elaborately with lace a wreath of orange blossoms and a veil of lace or tulle Any white gown is permissible however silk crepe de chine and its new weave called panne mousseline de soie chiffon lace of many varieties moire mull India lawn lingerie musline or soft sheer organdie Whatever the material the skirt should have a train Except at an evening wedding waists cut open or low at the neck or with short or elbow sleeves unless the arms are covered with long gloves are not approved for brides In France a high necked bodice with sleeves reaching to the wrist is de rigueur and all the feminine world follows the dicta proceeding from that oracle A marriage in France always takes place in a church and propriety and reverence for a place of worship inspire the custom The modesty of such a gown commends it and makes it fitly accompany a veil
